CONSPICUOUSLY

Little Fellow Has Played Havoc With Cloverport and Hardinsburg People the Last Warm Days in June.

ONE LEADS WITH BIG SCORE

Hambleton--Gerber.

Mr. Charles B. Hambleton of Cloverport, and Miss Anna Gerber of this city were united in marriage at the parish house of Rev. G. H. Moss of St. Michael's church at 2:30 p. m., yesterday. The attendants were Mr. C. W. Babbage of Cloverport, and Miss Carrie Arnold, of Owensboro.

Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the home of the bride's father, Mr. Frank Gerber, where a reception was held and refreshments partaken of.

Mr. and Mrs. Hambleton left on the afternoon train from Hawesville, for a wedding trip to Louisville, where they will spend their honeymoon.

They will be at home at Cloverport after an absence of about a week.

The bridegroom has a position with the Henderson Route at the Cloverport shops, is a clever, industrious fellow who has many friends.

His bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. Frank Gerber, of this city, and is a most charming woman who has many friends.

The Telephone wishes the couple a life fraught with many choice blessings and unalloyed bliss. —Cannelton Telephone.

Graham--May.

Miss Mamie Graham and Mr. Raymond May had a quiet marriage in the parlors of the Sunlight Hotel in Cannelton Monday. That evening they were given a handsome entertainment by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Solbrig. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Price Graham, and a sister of Mrs. Henry May, while the groom is the youngest brother of Mr. May. They are popular young people and many friends are extending them congratulations.

Beard--Graham.

The marriage of Miss Margaret Henley Beard and Mr. Lawrence B. Graham, of Bowling Green, was solemnized at the Methodist Episcopal church, South, Wednesday morning at eight o'clock by the pastor, Rev. M. L. Dyer, in the presence of a large assembly.

A musical program was given before the ceremony. Mrs. Blanche Reid presided at the vocalists. Mrs. Nora Board, of Irvington, sang, "O Promise Me" in a very impressive manner.

At the conclusion of the song to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march Rev. M. L. Dyer came from his study and met the ushers, Messrs. Delaney and Burton, Beard and Skillman who were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Lillian Beard, sister of the bride, dressed in a white marquisette, carrying a bouquet of pink sweet peas.

The bride, clad in a lavender silk, her mother's wedding dress, carrying a bouquet of white sweet peas and lilies, walked to the altar with her father, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met by the groom, a best man, Mr. Wick Follin, of Bowling Green.

Mrs. Reid played Romanza during an impressive ceremony.

After the pastor pronounced them husband and wife they left the church the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march.

Before leaving town the bride threw a bouquet to a number of her girls and Miss Martha Gardner catching it.

The bridal party left on the 9:17 clock train for Louisville where they will be entertained at a six o'clock dinner at the home of Mr. George Burton, one of the ushers. From there they go to Cincinnati, where they will again be entertained to a six o'clock dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Graham are at home with their many friends at Bowling Green.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Graham, Messrs. Albert and Wick Follin, of Bowling Green. Mrs. J. E. Wright, Mr. George Burton, Misses Neta Beard and Martha Maxwell, of Louisville. Misses Emma and Mildred Moorman, Daisy

Deane and Emma Lou Moorman, of Glen Dean, Mrs. Nora Board and children, Jack and Helen, of Irvington. Mrs. David R. Murray and daughter, Mildred, of Indianapolis, Indiana.

Wm. Preston Makes Assignment.

Wm. Preston, of this city, made an assignment last week for the benefit of creditors. His liabilities will reach about $700. His assets consist of a stock of goods, supposed to be worth about $400. Mr. Preston is endeavoring to settle satisfactorily with all of his creditors, most of whom are Louisville and Evansville merchants. V. G. Babbage, the attorney of this city is the assignee.

Prostrated With Heat.

Richard Wathen was prostrated with heat in Louisville Sunday and is ill at an infirmary there. Joe Graham was prostrated while firing on his engine Monday and has been brought to his home here. Friends wish them both rapid recovery.

For Miss Waller.

Miss Lula Margaret Severs gave an all day dinner party Sunday for her guest, Miss Lillie Muir Waller, of Morganfield. The guests were: Misses Ree and Martha Willis, Miss Heyser and Miss Babbage.

Family Re-union.

It may be of interest to some of our readers to learn that there is to be a re-union of the Lander family at Salubria Springs, near Pembroke in Christian county, July 19th and 20th. Many of the old residents will remember Nathan Lander, who was among the early settlers of this county. He died in 1854. His son, Richard, was sheriff of this county for some years and also represented it in the legislature. Hon. Frank Lander, of Hawesville, is a grandson of Nathan, and there are several related families in this section.

GET BUSY

Road From Irvington To Custer Can Be Built In A Week--It Will Be One Of The Most Important Roads In The County --Get Busy And Build It

In these days of progress and advancement when things are doing and being done all over the Southland; a pike to be constructed on the cooperative plan from Irvington to Custer is an improvement, which if launched under proper auspices and backed by the many prosperous farmers along the route, and receiving the hearty cooperation of the business men at both terminals should assume definite shape. In a similar movement to build a road from Bristol, Tenn., thirty thousand men in the state have agreed to do actual work on the road, some of them for two days and others for longer, under the direction of the commission. Seven thousand teams will be used; in a distance of only twelve miles a similar number of both men and teams would be sufficient.

Moonlight Picnic Great Success.

Union Star, Ky., July 3, 1911.—(Special).—One of the grandest events of the season took place at Union Star Saturday night July 1st, when S. H. Dutschke gave a moonlight picnic in his yard. The grounds were decorated according to the occasion and looked beautiful indeed. "Our Nation's flag both great and small, waved high above all." The string band, Bryant and Clark, furnished excellent music.

Throughout the evening the nicest of order prevailed and a goodly number engaged in waltzes and danced to the tempting music. A nice and wholesome supper was set out for the crowd and refreshments of every kind were to be had. Mr. Dutschke is to be congratulated on his ability and success in giving picnics, this being his second this season. The crowd was immense, people coming from several adjoining towns and the country. At twelve o'clock they reluctantly left the grounds for their homes, all expressing their enjoyment of the evening and begging Mr. Dutschke to give another picnic ere the season closes.

Mrs. McGovern Found Dead

By Son Last Monday Morning

Mrs. Bridget McGovern, of near Victoria, was found dead in her room last Monday morning at nine o'clock by her son, William.

Mrs. McGovern was seventy-nine years old. She was a mother of Mrs. P. J. Morris, of this city.

FUNERAL HELD

AT GLEN DEAN

Body Of Guy F Moorman Brought Here From Los Angeles, California--Was a Favorite In St. Louis And Leaves Many Good Friends.

FAMILY ATTENDS FUNERAL.

Following is a letter received from Mr. Holder, regarding Guy F. Moorman, who was well-known in this and Meade counties.

St. Louis, Mo., June 30, 1911.

Miss Louise Babbage:—Enclosed find clippings from this morning's Republic, which may be some news to you. Guy died in Los Angeles, Cal., at the Highland Park Sanatorium of injuries received from a fall from a street car. Being a Cloverport boy I am sure the Breckenridge News will care to know this. Guy certainly leaves many good and true friends in St. Louis, Mo. Success to the News.

I am, W. O. Holder.

Guy F. Moorman, who for ten years bore the reputation of being the handsomest man on the St. Louis police force, died Wednesday at Los Angeles, Cal., of injuries received in falling from a street car, according to word received by friends yesterday. He went to Los Angeles in January because of failing health.

Moorman was the Beau Brummel of the Broadway Squad. His uniform was spotless, his buttons and star were highly polished and his tall, athletic figure won for him the smiles of the fair sex. As a further attraction, he had a five-carat diamond ring.

Moorman was a model officer, never having been cited to appear before the Police Board. He was a bachelor and his savings he invested in diamonds. While he did not wear all of them at the same time, he had many and usually changed each day as a diversion.

Off duty, Moorman was one of the most neatly dressed men in the city. He was the envy of the Jonnies who frequent the downtown corners at noon and in the early evening.

Moorman joined the force in August, 1890, and upon being assigned to duty in the Central District, he was picked at once for the Broadway Squad. He was stationed at Sixth street and Washington avenue, and his dignified, pleasant manner won him a host of friends among the shoppers.

After ten years of service in that district, his health failed him. He gave up the place on the squad and was sent to a beat in the Fourth District. Later he was brought back to the Central District for office work, but his health became so poor he went West. He obtained a position with a local paint concern as a salesman and had the Western territory.

Moorman's body was taken from Los Angeles to Cloverport, Ky., for burial. He had a brother on the squad, who recently resigned the force.

IRVINGTON.

David Herndon, of Louisville, is spending several days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Herndon.

Dr. W. B. Taylor has gotten out some cute souvenirs in the shape of fans, which he is giving away, that are quite pretty and attractive. Dr. Taylor has recently moved here from Hodgenville and has located with us as a dentist. We are glad to have him in our city and he comes highly recommended as a splendid dentist.

Mrs. W. W. Williams, of Henderson, is expected here this week to spend several days with Mrs. J. R. Wimp.

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Henderson have returned to Basin Spring from a visit to Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Long at Georgetown, Ind.

Miss Elizabeth Cridler left Saturday for Glen Dean where she will visit relatives and friends.

Rev. and Mrs. L. K. May and children have returned from a visit to relatives and friends at Campbellsville, Ky., and Jeffersontown, Ind.

Everybody come to the meeting. What meeting? The Union Revival meeting, commencing on Thursday night, July 13th in the tent. The Rev. Walt Holcomb, of Nashville, Tenn., will do the preaching, assisted by a Baptist Evangelist and a large chorus choir, under the direction of Rev.

Shepherd. Don't miss this opportunity to enjoy good singing and hear soul stirring preaching. Services twice daily. Come prepared to sing yourself.

Mrs. H. J. Krebs has returned from Guthrie, where she spent several days with her mother, Mrs. J. P. Kelly.

Mrs. Will Bandy, of Redfield, Iowa, visited Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Penick last week.

The Union Meeting has been postponed until Thursday evening, July 13. The tent will be pitched in the school house yard, a place accessible to every one.

Miss Iva Bramlet has returned to her home at Owensboro after several weeks visit to friends and relatives here and at Webster.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Neafus and two children returned Monday from a visit to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Childs and other relatives near Guston.

G. T. Marshall has sold 31 feet of ground lying on Caroline street, to the Irvington Hdwe. & Implement Co. Consideration not known.

The sale which has been going on at Louis H. Jolly's store for the past two weeks, is certainly proving a great success. The sale has brought hundreds of people to Irvington and the bargains offered the public exceeded anything ever seen here before. On Friday morning July 7th, the remainder of the stock of goods will be offered at public auction, which will end one of the most successful sales ever conducted in Irvington.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Major and little daughter, Katharine, of Louisville, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bate Washington, for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Hart have gone to Baskett where they joined a party for a ten days fishing trip up Green River.

Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Marshall and son, Alton, and Mrs. Nellie Marshall and daughter, Ruth, returned last week from a visit to relatives and friends at White Mills.

Mrs. A. D. Pulliam, who has been visiting relatives in Louisville, has returned home.

The usual services will be held at the First Baptist church in the city with preaching by the pastor, Rev. A. R. Shepherd, at 11 a. m. The evening service will be short, with special music. Sunday school at 10 a. m. J. M. Herndon, superintendent. Everyone welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. David Henry arrived Sunday from Chattanooga, Tenn., to be the guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Henry, for the week.

The building owned by Foster Lyons on Main street and which is being occupied by Haynes Trent, is undergoing repairs and when completed it will be up-to-date in every respect.

Mrs. Nora Board has returned to her home after having attended the Beard-Graham wedding in Hardinsburg Wednesday morning.

Miss Virginia Head is visiting Miss Eula Chapel at her country home near here.

Mrs. Rhodes came down Saturday from a visit to relatives at Medora and Brandenburg.

Misses Elsie Baxter and Lillie Neff, of Guston, spent Sunday with Miss Julia Lyons.

Tuesday afternoon, June 30, the halls, corridors and auditorium of the beautiful Sacred Heart Academy were most gorgeously decorated in masses of Southern Smilax, cut flowers and stately palms in honor of the twenty-fourth annual commencement exercises of this venerable institution. The occasion was made more impressive by the presence of the Rev. Bishop Denis O'Donoghue, who conferred crowns and diplomas upon the class of the sweet girl graduates, among whom Breckenridge county is pleased to recognize Miss Mary Nevitt, the charming and accomplished young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Nevitt, of Basin Springs. Miss Nevitt has recently returned to the beautiful country home of her father and she will be quite a charming addition to the younger society set of Irvington.

MAKING GOOD

Phenomenal Growth Of An Owensboro Manufacturing Enterprise.

The Anglo-American Mill Co., of Owensboro, Ky., the sole manufacturers of the "Midget" Marvel Self Contained Roller Flour Mill in the United States, having acquired the patent rights from Mr. A. R. Tattersall, the inventor, of London, England, have met with such success in the sale of their wonderful little mill that they have been compelled to build a larger plant, and they have placed orders for a manufacturing equipment, which will give them one complete mill per day.

The Self-Contained Roller Flour Mill has been the dream of milling engineers ever since the roller process came into use some 30 years ago, but every effort at making one has heretofore proven a failure. Tattersall, the well-known English Milling Engineer, however, has proven his pre-eminence in the flour milling world by inventing the "Midget" Marvel, which has been in use throughout England and continental Europe for the past four years. Its success in this country was freely predicted from the start, but not even the most sanguine stockholder of the American Company was prepared for the instantaneous success with which the mill has met all over this country. The "Midget" Marvel makes it possible for every little village to have its flour mill, and one that makes the best of patent flour, with the assurance that the owner is making more money in its operation than anything else he could engage in on an equal amount of capital.

The Anglo American Mill Co., are offering a very attractive Bond issue, which will be found in another part of this paper. Those having money for investment ought to look into this proposition. The men behind it are among the best known business men in Owensboro, while the Central Trust Co., the Trustee for the Bondholders, in one of the strongest banking institutions in the state, with over $1,000,000 assets.

THE ONLY HOPE OF REPUBLICAN SUCCESS.

The Leader of Thursday contained three items, which read in conjunction, show the foundation for the only hope the Republicans have of winning an election.

One item was headed "Judge O'Rear To Speak At Opera House." Another item, "O'Rear Club of Colored Men—H. T. Duncan and H. W. Simmons Will Address Body Tonight." The third, to be read in connection with these two, is an editorial on "Judge O'Rear's Decision in the Berea College Case." The editorial, a specious appeal to the negroes to support Judge O'Rear for the Republican nomination for Governor, is conclusive proof that no Judge ought to take part in partisan politics. The spectacle is presented of a Judge of the highest court in the State, before which must appear those involved in important litigation, by which must be decided questions of supreme importance, not only to the litigants, but to the people, retaining his position as a member of that court, and appealing to the voters of the State to support him in his aspirations to be Governor. Speaking for him as his next friend, The Leader defends his decision in the case known as the Berea College Case, in which the Court of Appeals upheld the Day Act, which forbids the education of white and colored persons in the same institution. We do not criticize that decision. It is not a matter of present moment except as it shows the impropriety of a Judge seeking political honors while holding a judicial position. But the editorial and the effort to get the colored vote for Judge O'Rear call attention to the fact that the candidate of the Republican party for Governor will owe his nomination to the negro vote, and if elected will owe his election to that same vote. There are enough negro voters in the State to decide any contest in the Republican party between two men, each of whom is supported by any considerable number of white voters. That Republican for whom the negro vote goes solidly will be nominated for Governor. There would not be even a contest for the Governorship were it not for the negro vote. No man in the State will claim, no man can believe that there would be a possibility of the Republican ticket being elected except because of the negro vote, added to the minority of the white votes that the Republic-

The thing for Democrats to do now is to get in line for the ticket. Mr. Watterson says: "McCreary will not lose a Democratic vote. He ought to receive the solid independent vote. He has been often tried and never found wanting. He is safe, sane and upright. The people have always known where to place him. They take no risks after nearly a generation in sending him back to Frankfort, and there they will send him, no matter whom the Republicans put up against him." And we agree with Mr. Watterson. On to victory should now be the battle cry.

The Bank of Hardinsburg and Trust Co. was 21 years old the first day of July, and the board of directors celebrated the event by increasing the dividend rate from 8 per cent. to 10 per cent. In the 21 years of its existence it has earned over and above taxes, expenses and losses, $94,500. Of this, it has paid to stockholders in dividends $74,500, and has in surplus and undivided profits $20,000. A pretty good and satisfactory showing. The officers, directors and stockholders should be proud of it as well as its patrons.

G. F. Greenwood, near Stephensport, was here last week and said he had the finest stand of tobacco he ever had. "I have only an acre and a half," said he, "but it's good." The small crops are always good. Pity more tobacco growers can't get this idea of small acreage and good quality, rather than large acreage and bad quality. An acre of tobacco well tended on good ground is worth more than two acres poorly tended.

We have a splendid Democratic ticket—one of the best that has been put up for years. All Democrats and independents can support this ticket, and they will do it with a hearty good will; rolling up a majority in November of 30,000. Let Democrats get busy.

The Republicans of this county will meet in Mass Convention at Hardinsburg next Saturday to select delegates to the State Convention which convenes in Louisville next Tuesday to select candidates for the State offices.

Next week will be a big trading week at Irvington. Our advertising columns tells the story of the many bargains and inducements offered by the live merchants of that town. It will pay you to visit them.

It was a safe and sane Fourth; not a gun nor a firecracker was heard. There was no drinking and carousing at any of the gatherings held over the county. Everybody was safe, sane and happy but awful hot.

The Farmers Bank, of Hardinsburg, makes a good showing in their statement printed in another column. They declare a 3 per cent. dividend and add $1,000 to their surplus fund.

If the Democrats of this county will name a safe and sane man to represent the county in the next Legislature we can win in this county next November.

VIENNA DEATH NOTICES.

They Read Like an Extract From a Family History.

"Don't die in Vienna. You'll be sorry if you do," writes an American on his first visit to that city, "not because of the usual objections, but on account of the death notices in the papers. They appear flanked by all sorts of ads. and range in size according to the desire for notice on the part of the family of the late lamented. Every possible title is mentioned, and the name of every member of the family goes to make up the notice. A death announcement black bordered and covering half a page of the paper is nothing unusual. Here is a sample:

"Bruno Weiss, purveyor of lubricating oil to his imperial and royal majesty, and his wife, Amalie—born Horstzky—in their own and in the names of their children—Hans, Otto, Minna, Laura and Hilde—and their sons-in-law, Military Surgeon Dr. Lohs Kroblinsky and Architect Oskar Jellinek; their daughters-in-law, Louise, born Lederman, and Marie, born Aaspacker, as also in the names of their grandchildren—here follows a long string of names—and their mother and mother-in-law, Frau Ernestine Winkler, relict of Commercial Councillor Anton Winkler, announce to their friends the entrance into eternal rest, after a long and severe illness, of their dearly beloved son, Arthur, in the twenty-sixth year of his age."

"This is correct except as to the names."—New York Tribune.

CAMELS OF THE ARABS.

Various Ways the Desert Nomads Use the Animals' Milk.

Nearly 90,000 camels are used in the vilayet of Bagdad as beasts of burden, and with donkeys they form the only means of carrying goods to inland points. For a common burden camel $30 is a fair price, though the trotters, or swift messenger camels, are worth more. A young camel can sometimes be had about Bagdad for as little as $3 or $4.

Besides its use for riding and carrying purposes, the Mesopotamian Arabs depend on the camel for milk. Shoes are made from its tough, calloused hide, and in times of famine its brittle, strong tasting flesh is eaten. Condensed milk, made by boiling fresh camel milk until evaporation leaves only a hard, chalky substance, is prized among the desert nomads. By rubbing this substance between the hands it reduces to powder, and when mixed with warm water it makes a refreshing drink, highly esteemed among the desert folk. "Morees," as it is called, will keep in good condition for two years. When made from buttermilk it tastes sour and is prized among Arabs who have eaten much of sweet dates. Fresh, warm camel milk is also the food of many valuable horses owned by desert sheiks.

Camel calves are weaned in their eleventh or twelfth month. When a camel caravan is on the march the very young camels are often tied upon the backs of the mother animal, since they cannot endure the fatigue of a long march. Valuable dogs and Arab desert hounds, called "slugeys," also ride in the same way.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It. How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a brick dust sediment, or settling, stringy or milky appearance often indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back are also symptoms that tell you the kidneys and bladder are out of order and need attention.

What To Do. There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills almost every wish in correcting rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. Corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest because of its remarkable health restoring properties. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Mention this paper and remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

THE USEFUL SAFETY PIN.

It Can Be Employed In Many Ways About the Household.

Not even a hairpin is capable of so many uses outside its legitimate office as the safety pin. Like the hairpin, the safety pin may be employed to do what the needle is supposed always to do on well kept garments—fasten buttons and catch ripped facings. As a button fastener on a garment it has no rival for thoroughness, though it might not be well to whisper this fact to the girls who have not made the discovery for themselves and who are apt to find sleight of hand methods in mending.

But in the closet and wardrobe and the workbasket the safety pin finds its greatest usefulness. And right here why does not some enterprising manufacturer bring out safety pins that are fine enough to run through small button eyes? For in keeping buttons of the same kind apart from the ruffraff of the usual button bag there is nothing like a safety pin—that is, when the eyes of the buttons are not too small to let the pin go through them.

Most women have washable waists and skirts from which the buttons have to be removed when they are sent to the laundry, and a mere safety pin will keep these together and save the wild excitement of finding that last button that is sure to disappear just at the most exasperating moment.

Half a dozen long, fine safety pins in the workbasket threaded with buttons of various kinds, hooks and eyes and the like will save trips to the button bag and prevent nervous search when one is in a hurry. Nothing will take the safety pin's place in the small travelling sewing receptacle. A small pin will take on all the buttons one can possibly need for an ordinary trip, and another will hold to

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Breckenridge Circuit Court, Kentucky.

H. A. Oelze, Plaintiff.

Against

Mary B. Oelze & Co., Defendants.

Equity, No. 3341.

By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale of Breckenridge Circuit Court, rendered at May Term thereof, 1911, in the above cause, for the sum of six hundred dollars ($600) with interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum from the 22d day of January, 1911, until paid, and all costs herein, I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Court House door in Hardinsburg, to the highest bidder, at Public Auction, on Monday, the 24th day of July, 1911, at one o'clock p. m., or thereabout, (being County Court day), upon a credit of six and twelve months, the following described property, to-wit: A certain house and lot situated, lying and being in Cloverport, Ky., Breckenridge county, situated on Second street in said city, and fronting on Second street 100 feet and running back to an alley, and being the same property in which Mary B. Oelze resides. Said property not being susceptible of division, same will be sold as a whole.

The purchaser, with approved surety or securities, must execute bond, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment. Lien retained to secure payment of purchase money. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Approximated debt, interest and cost $812.50.

Womanly Wisdom

Always put off till to-morrow what is wrong to be done today.

Heat your knife before cutting hard soap.

Jelly from berries picked wet is almost sure to mold, and doesn't jell right. Try to pick them dry.

Put a few grains of rice in your salt shakers. They will break the lumps, gather the moisture and make the salt come out freely.

Glue pieces of felt or pieces of old rubbers to the bottom of the chair legs and there will be no scratched floors and less noise.

An emergency glue may be made of rice. Boil a handful of rice in water until it is a thick fine paste. Very good for pasting white paper.

In making cake with fruit in it, beef suet and butter, half and half, is better than all butter. I have known lard and beef suet to give good results.

When a ham or smoked tongue has been boiled, try plunging it in cold water as soon as removed from the fire, this will make the skin come off easily and smoothly.

A handy way to remove piles and cakes from a hot oven is to use a common shingle. Cut away the thick end into the shape of a handle. Bore a hole in it and keep the shingle hanging behind the stove.

If you have some work to do in the sun and have no sunbonnet, take a piece of paper, pin it together behind, run a string over the top and through a slit at each side, and tie it under the chin. It may rattle a good deal but may save you a headache.

String beans cut with a pair of sharp scissors, on a slant, instead of straight across, will cook more quickly if one happens to be pressed for time. This may seem a notion, but I have tried it often, and have found the beans to cook quicker than when broken straight across in the usual way.—From July Farm Journal.

$50,000.00 OF BONDS BEARING 8 PER CENT. INTEREST NOW OFFERED FOR SUBSCRIPTION AT PAR.

The interest payable semi-annually, the bonds payable in five years. Issued by the Anglo-American Mill Company, of Owensboro, Ky., and secured by a first mortgage on their buildings and real estate and entire property of every description. The Central Trust Company of Owensboro, Ky., has been appointed Registrar and Trustee for the bondholders.

These Bonds will be issued in denominations of $100 each, with 10 interest coupons of $4 each attached to each $100 Bond, one of which coupons will be payable on January 20th, and July 20th, during each of the next 5 years, at the end of which time the principal, $100, will be paid for each Bond. These interest coupons will be paid at the times mentioned at the offices of The Central Trust Co., Owensboro, Ky.

The Anglo-American Mill Co., is a Kentucky corporation, organized in 1910, with a capital stock of $100,000, with the following officers:

L. FREEMAN LITTLE, President.
W. L. RENO, Secretary and Treasurer.
Directors:
J. W. McCULLOCH, President Green River Dist. Co.
W. L. RENO, Cashier Central Trust Co.
LUCIUS P. LITTLE, of Little & Slack, Attorneys at Law.
C. A. ROGERS, President Gunther Wholesale Grocery Co.
L. FREEMAN LITTLE, Late Managing Director of The Alsop Flour Process, Ltd., of London, England.

Capacity 25 bbls. per day of the best flour; any man can become a miller on one-half the capital usually required. Our mill will make a barrel of flour cheaper than any other mill in the world. These mills are in operation all over the United States. We have them in the following States: Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Michigan and Washington. Each one of them has proven remarkably successful. The demand for the "Midget" Marvel has so exceeded our present manufacturing facilities of one mill per week that we are compelled to build a larger manufacturing plant that can keep pace for a time with our increasing orders.

The Business of the Anglo-American Mill Co. is the Manufacture and Sale of Tattersall's English "Midget" Marvel Self-Contained Roller Flour Mill.

We have purchased the brick building formerly occupied by the Hoagland Buggy Co., in Seven Hills, Owensboro, Ky., with about two acres of ground; we have just let contracts for the very latest improved machinery, and expect to have this new factory in operation by September 1, when we will have a capacity of one complete mill per day. The operation of the "Midget" Marvel Mill is the best money making proposition for the man of small means that has ever been offered. It is the only small mill that can compete with gigantic trust mills. It has been predicted by conservative persons connected with the trade that sooner or later the "Midget" Marvel will eliminate all of the smaller mills throughout the country.

We sell our mills on the following terms: $50 cash with the order, $700 cash on shipment, and the balance of $1,000 divided into six equal payments due in 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 months, with 8 per cent. interest. We now propose to give our Bondholders the benefit of this interest we are able to secure simply because we have the only self-containing mill on the market, and the customer either buys of us or not at all.

Subscriptions for any of these bonds will be accepted until July 20th, or will close at an earlier time if same are entirely subscribed. Subscriptions will be entered strictly in rotation in which they are received. We reserve the right to reject any subscriptions. Those subscriptions received after all of the Bonds are subscribed for will be returned. Terms of subscription are as follows:

$25 cash to be sent with the application for each $100 Bond.
$25 payable on August 20 on each $100 Bond.
$25 payable on Sept. 20 on each $100 Bond.
$25 payable on Oct. 20 on each $100 Bond.
The first interest coupon on each Bond amounting to $4, will be paid on Jan. 20, 1912, at the Central Trust Co., Owensboro, Ky.

Bonds will be allotted on July 20, 1911, and all of those having Bonds allotted to them will be advised at once by mail. The Bonds will be registered and delivered on the final payment Oct. 20, or at any earlier time that the full $100 is paid up on any Bond.

This Company will have the privilege of redeeming any of these Bonds at the end of one year, or at any time thereafter, with 30 days' notice, by paying the accrued interest to the next coupon date and $110 for each $100 Bond redeemed.

If you want to be sure of securing one or more of these Bonds for investment you will have to act at once by cutting out the coupon in this advertisement, filling in the number of Bonds for which you wish to subscribe, and inclose same with $25 cash payment for each Bond you subscribe for, to W. L. Reno, Secretary and Treasurer, at The Central Trust Co., Owensboro, Ky.

To intending purchasers of Bonds we will be glad to confirm any of these statements here at our office, show our books, or orders and the general character of our business. Write for our new catalogue, "The Story of a wonderful Flour Mill," it will interest you. We will be glad to send it.

FIX PRICES ON WHEAT

Owensboro Millers and Buyers Will Pay 78 Cents For No. 2 Scale For Grading Fixed And Prices Named Are For Delivery Prior to July 4.

The millers and grain dealers of Owensboro, says the Enquirer, have fixed a schedule of prices to pay for the new crop of wheat, and ranges from 78 cents for No. 2 wheat, for delivery up to and including July 4, down to 70 cents less. No wheat will be received July 4.

The following scale for grading wheat is observed:

Fifty-eight pounds to the bushel, price.
Fifty-seven pounds, one cent less.
Fifty-six pounds, three cents less.
Fifty-five pounds, five cents less.
Fifty-four pounds, no grade.
Damaged and smutty wheat 3 to 5 cents less.
Price fixed for No. 2 wheat pool is 85 cents.

Bryan Is Right

Of course Mr. Bryan is right in his demand for free wool. It is an indefensible outrage upon our ninety millions of people to compel them to pay higher prices for their short wool and shoddy clothing than the people of England pay for their long wool clothing, merely to give a few hundred sheep raisers a theoretical increase of profit at their expense, on the wool which they produce in this country. We say theoretical profit, because, while the sheep raisers are enabled to charge higher prices for their inferior wool, the owners of the sheep pastures increase their ground rents to absorb the increase of profit in the wool and the poor deluded, though 'protected' sheep raisers are as badly off as they were before. Besides, the short wool clothing stretches and becomes baggy and ill fitting in four or five months, while the long staple woolen materials which the tariff on the raw materials prevent us from manufacturing here, wear for years without becoming unshapely.

Of course, we realize that Mr. Underwood is in rather a delicate position in the matter, because the great steel and iron producing and manufacturing interests of his state (Alabama) require a high protective tariff on their commodities, to enable them to pay high wages to their unorganized negro laborers, and the votes of the sheep men are needed to maintain the protective system; but he should realize that it is better for a protectionist to vindicate his principles by staying at home as a republican, than to come to Congress as a Democrat and there support republican policies.

Mr. Underwood's retort, that Mr. Bryan voted for the Wilson bill containing the same wool schedule which he presents, is a non-sequitur; all Democrats, except the pro-tariff filibusters, voted for the Wilson bill on its final passage, as it is to be hoped, all Democrats will vote for the Underwood bill, on its final passage, however earnestly they may, in the meantime, urge the amendment of some of its schedules.

Again, it will be well for some of our leading Democrats to remember that Mr. Bryan has a right to be heard, even in criticism of the august "ways and means committee;" and also that Democratic leaders who seriously dis-

Cabin, the blind emblem of allegiance to the Republican party on the part of the negroes, Mr. Duncan nor any other would seek the Republican nomination for Mayor. The overwhelming majority of the white people of Lexington are Democrats. The only possibility of the Republicans carrying Lexington, or the State of Kentucky, is based upon their receiving the solid negro vote, because of the worship, blind and unreasoning, by the voters of that race for the Log Cabin.

We point out these facts at this time in the race for State offices because of the juxtaposition of the three items in The Leader, the announcement of Judge O'Rear's appearance at the Opera House, the announcement of the speech of H. T. Duncan, Jr., before the Colored O'Rear Club, or the O'Rear Colored Club, we have forgotten which, and the editorial in The Leader on the Berea College case. Future developments in the canvass both for governor and for Mayor will cast further light upon the combination of forces which these items emphasized.—Lexington Herald.

Give The Kidneys Help And Many People Will Be Happier.

"Throw Out the Life Line"—The kidneys need help.

They're overworked—can't get the poison filtered out of the blood.

They're getting worse every minute. Will you help them?

Doan's Kidney Pills have brought thousands of kidney sufferers back from the verge of despair.

Read this case:

Mrs. Lotus Hoover, Eighth St., Cannelton, Ind., says:

"I cannot say too much in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, for I have taken them with success and other members of my family have also profited through their use. My kidneys were disordered for a long time before I knew exactly what ailed me. My limbs were stiff and sore and I had sharp pains across the small of my back. I also suffered from headaches and dizzy spells. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended by local people who had taken them, I was finally led to begin their use. The contents of three boxes completely cured me."

PROLOGUE

English detective stories have their waxing and their waning in public favor; their American imitations hold the readers' attention for a time; French and German acuteness in the devising of original plots engages our interest until the tales of newer Vidocqs are told, but Anna Katharine Green's detective stories, based on incidents of American life, are perennial bloomers. They know no permanent rivals in American liking.

In the writing of stories with originality of plot, skillful depiction of character, interest of incident, intricacy of mystery and boldness of denouement no foreign novelist can hope to compete for American favor with this American woman writer.

Read "The House of the Whispering Pines," a story of love and crime and mystery, told in her best vein. We warrant it to be one of her best and therefore one of the world's best.

CHAPTER I.

THE HESITATING STEP.

THE moon rode high, but ominous clouds were rushing toward it—clouds heavy with snow. I watched these clouds as I drove recklessly, desperately over the winter roads. I had just missed the desire of my life, the one precious treasure which I coveted with my whole undisciplined heart, and, not being what you call a man of self restraint, I was chafed by my defeat far beyond the bounds I have usually set for myself.

I rode on, hardly conscious of my course, till the rapid recurrence of several well known landmarks warned me that I had taken the longest route home and that in another moment I should be skirting the grounds of the Whispering Pines, our country clubhouse. The season was over and the clubhouse closed, and when, the great stack of chimneys coming suddenly into view against the broad disk of the still unclouded moon, I perceived a thin trail of smoke soaring up from their midst I realized with a shock that there should be no such sign of life in a house I myself had closed, locked and barred that very day.

I was the president of the club and felt responsible. I turned in at the lower gateway. For reasons which I need not now state there were no bells attached to my cutter, and consequently my approach was noiseless. I was careful that it should be so; also careful to stop short of the front door and leave my horse and sleigh in the black depths of the pine grove, pressing up to the walls on either side. I was sure that all was not as it should be inside these walls.

Our clubhouse stands, as it may be necessary to remind you, on a knoll thickly wooded with the ancient trees I have mentioned. These trees—all pines and of a growth unusual and of an aspect well nigh hoary—extend only to the rear end of the house, where a wide stretch of gently undulating ground opens at once upon the eye, suggesting to all lovers of golf the admirable use to which it is put from early spring to latest fall. Now links as well as parterres and driveways were lying under an even blanket of winter snow. No other building stood with a half mile in any direction.

I felt the isolation as I stepped from the edge of the trees and prepared to cross the few feet of open space leading to the main door. In some moods I should have paused and thought twice before attempting the door, behind which in the dark lurked the unknown with its naturally accompanying suggestion of peril. But rage and disappointment, working hotly within me, had left no space for fear. Rather rejoicing in the doubtfulness of the adventure, I pushed my way over the snow until my feet struck the steps. Here instinct caused me to stop and glance quickly up and down the building either way. Not a gleam of light met my eye from the smallest scintillating pane. Was the house as soundless as it was dark?

I listened, but heard nothing. I listened again and still heard nothing. Then I proceeded boldly up the steps and laid my hand on the door.

It was unlatched and yielded to my touch. Light or no light, sound or no sound, there was some one within. The fire which had sent its attenuated streak of smoke up into the moonlit air was burning yet on one of the many hearths within. I proceeded to enter and close the door carefully behind me. As I did so I cast an involuntary glance without. The sky was ink, and a few wandering flakes of the now rapidly advancing storm came whirling in, hitting my cheeks and stinging my forehead.

Once inside I stopped short, possibly to listen again, possibly to assure myself as to what I had best do next. The silence was profound. Not a sound disturbed the great, empty building. My own footfall as I stirred seemed to wake extraordinary echoes. I had moved but a few steps, yet to my heightened senses the noise seemed loud enough to wake the dead. Instinctively I stopped and stood stock still. There was no answering cessation of movement—darkness, silence everywhere. Yet not quite absolute darkness. As my eyes grew accustomed to the place I found it possible to discern the outlines of the windows and locate the stairs and the arches where the side halls opened. I was even able to pick out the exact spot where the great notiers spread themselves above the bar rack, and presently the rack itself came into view, with its row of empty pegs. Yesterday so full, today quite empty. That rack interested me, I hardly knew why, and regardless of the noise I made I crossed over to it and ran my hand along the wall underneath. The result was startling. A man's coat and hat hung from one of the pegs.

Would this hat and coat identify the intruder? I would strike a light and see. But this involved difficulties. The gas had been turned off that very morning, and I had no matches in my pocket. But I remembered where they could be found. I had seen them when I passed through the kitchen earlier in the day.

I began to move that way and presently came creeping back with a matchbox half full of matches in my hand. But I did not strike one then. I had just made a move to do so when the unmistakable sound of a door opening somewhere in the house made me draw back into as quiet and dark a place as I could find. This lay in the rear and at the right of the staircase, and as the sound had appeared to come from above it was the most natural retreat that offered. And a good one I found it.

I had hardly taken up my stand when the darkness above gave way to a faint glimmer and a step became audible coming from some one of the many small rooms in the second story, but slowly and with evident hesitation.

The light steadily increased with each lagging but surely advancing step. Then the uncertain step paused, and a sob came faintly to my ears, wrung from lips stiff with human anguish. The sound of the sigh struck shudderingly on my ear, followed by the renewal of the step and the almost immediate appearance on the stairs of a beautiful young girl of seventeen holding a candle in one hand and shielding her left cheek with the other.

Nothing could have prepared me for an encounter with this woman anywhere that night after what had passed between us and the wreck she had made of my life. But here, in a place so remote and desolate, I had hesitated to enter it myself, what was I to think? How was I to reconcile so inconceivable a fact with what I knew of her in the past, with what I hoped from her in the future?

It was evident that some grisly fear, some staring horror, had met her in this strange retreat. Simple grief speaks with a different language from that which I read in her distorted features and tottering, slowly creeping form. What had happened above? She had escaped me to run upon what? My lips refused to ask, my limbs refused to move, and if I breathed at all I did so with such fierceness of restraint that her eyes never turned my way, not even when she had reached the lowest step and paused for a moment there, oscillating in pain or uncertainty. Her face was turned more fully toward me, and I had just begun to discern something in it besides its tragic beauty when she made a quick move and blew out the candle she held.

Then there came a crash, followed by the sound of flying feet. She had lunged the candlestick out of her hand and was hurriedly crossing the hall. I thought she was coming my way and instinctively drew back against the wall. But she stopped far short of me, and I heard her groping about, then give a sudden spring toward the front door. It opened, and the wind sighed in. I felt the chill of snow upon my face and realized the tempest. Then all was quiet and dark again. She had slid quickly out, and the door had swung to behind her.

Another instant and I heard the click of the key as it turned in the lock, heard it and made no outcry, such the spell, such the bewilderment, of my faculties! Then I felt all lesser emotions give way to an anxiety which demanded immediate action, for the girl had gone out without wraps or covering for her head, and my experience of the evening had told me how cold it was. I must follow and find her and rescue her if possible from the snow.

Throwing myself against the door, I shook it violently. It was immovable. Then I flew to the windows. Their fastenings yielded readily enough, but not the windows themselves. One had a broken cord, another seemed glued to its frame, and I was still struggling with the latter when I heard a sound which lifted the hair on my head and turned my whole attention back to what lay behind and above me. There was still some one in the house. To find Carmel Cumberland alone in this desolation was a mystifying discovery to which I had found it hard enough to reconcile myself. But Carmel here in company with an unknown another at the very moment when I had expected the fruition of my own joy—ah, that was to open hell's door in my breast, a possibility too intolerable to remain unsettled for an instant.

Leaving the window, I groped my way along the wall until I reached the rack where the man's coat and hat had hung. Nothing now hung from the rack. The wall was free from end to end. She had taken these articles of male apparel with her; she had not gone forth into the driving snow unprotected, but—

I did not know what to think. The groping she had done had been in this direction. She was searching for this hat and coat in a man's hat, a derby, as I had been careful to assure myself at the first handling, and in them she had gone home as she had probably come, and there was no man in the case, or if there were—

The doubt drove me to the staircase. I began my wary ascent. I had not the slightest fear. I was too full of cold rage for that. The arrangement of rooms on the second floor was well known to me. I understood every nook and corner and could find my way about the whole place without a light. I took but one precaution, that of slipping off my shoes at the foot of the stairs. I wished to surprise the intruder. I was willing to resort to any expedient to accomplish this. The matches I carried in my pocket would make this possible if once I heard him breathing. I held my own breath as I stole softly up and waited for an instant at the top of the stairs to listen. There was an awesome silence everywhere, and I was hesitating whether to attack the front rooms first or to follow up a certain narrow hall leading to a rear staircase when I remembered the thin line of smoke which, rising from one of the chimneys, had first attracted my attention to the house. In that was my clue.

I knew that there was but one room on this floor where a fire could be lit. It lay a few feet beyond me down the narrow hall I have just mentioned. Why had I trusted everything to my ears when my nose would have been a better guide? As I took the few steps necessary a slight smell of smoke became very perceptible, and no longer in doubt of my course, I pushed boldly on and, entering the half open door, struck a match and peered anxiously about.

Emptiness here just as everywhere else. A few chairs, a dresser—it was a ladies' dressing room—some smoldering ashes on the hearth, a lounge piled up with cushions, but no person. The sound I had heard had not issued from this room, yet something withheld me from seeking further. I paused just inside the door and when the match went out in my hand remained shivering there in the darkness, a prey to sensations more nearly approaching those of fear than any I had ever before experienced in my whole life.

Why I did not know. There seemed to be no reason for this excess of feeling. I had no dread of attack. My apprehension was of another sort. Besides, any attack here must come from the rear—from the open doorway in which I stood—and my dread lay before me, in the room itself, which, as I have already said, appeared to be totally empty. I had forgotten the intruder. The interest which had carried me thus far had become lost in a fresher one of which the beginning and ending lay hidden within the four walls I now stared upon, unseeing. Not to see and yet to feel—did that make the horror? If so another lighted match must help me out. I struck one while the thought was not within me and again took a look at the room.

I noted but one thing new, but that made me reel back till I was half-way into the hall. Then a certain dogged persistency I possess came to my rescue, and I re-entered the room at a leap and stood before the lounge and its pile of cushions. They were numerous—all that the room contained—and more. Chairs had been stripped, window seats denuded and the whole collection disposed here in a set way which struck me as unnatural.

But at this point my second match went out.

Thoroughly roused now (you will say by what?), I felt my way out of the room and to the head of the staircase. I remembered the candle and candlestick I had heard thrown down on the lower floor by Carmel Cumberland. I would secure them and come back and settle these uncanny doubts. I had a hunt for the candlestick and a still longer one for the candle, but finally I recovered both and, lighting the latter, felt myself for the first time more or less master of the situation.

Rapidly regaining the room in which my interest was now centered, I set the candlestick down on the dresser and approached the lounge. Hardly knowing what I feared or what I expected to find, I tore off one of the cushions and flung it behind me. More cushions were revealed, but that was not all.

Escaping from the edge of one of them I saw a shiny tress of woman's hair. I gave a gasp and pulled off more cushions. Then I fell on my knees, struck down by the greatest horror which a man can feel. Death lay before me—violent, uncalled for death—and the victim was a woman.

It was she—she indeed. Dead—Adelaide, the woman I had planned to wrong that very night and who had thus wronged me! For a moment I could take in nothing but this one astounding fact; then the how and why woke in maddening curiosity within me.

But beyond the ever accusing, protuberant stare those features told nothing, and, steeling myself to the situation, I made what observation I could of her condition and the surrounding circumstances, for this was my betrothed wife. Whatever my intentions, however far my love had strayed under the spell cast over me by her sister—the young girl who had just passed out—Adelaide and I had been engaged for many months. Our wedding day was even set.

be apt to take it off before committing herself to a fate that proclaimed me a traitor to this symbol. I should see that ring again I should find it in a letter filled with bitter words. I would not think of it or of them now. I would try to learn how she had committed this act, whether by poison or—

It must have been by poison. No other means would suggest themselves to one of her refined sense. But if so why those marks on her neck, growing darker and darker as I stared at them?

My senses reeled as I scrutinized those marks. Small, delicate, but deadly, they stared upon me from either side of her white neck till nature could endure no more, and I tottered back against the further wall, beholding no longer room nor lounge nor recumbent body, but a young girl's exquisite face, set in lines which belied her seventeen years and made futile any attempt on my part at self-deception when my reason inexorably demanded an explanation of this death. As suicide it was comprehensible, no murder not, unless—

And it had been murder! I sank to the floor as I fully realized this.

Something Blind.

In one of the crowded streets of New York a beggar was in the habit of taking his stand every day and appealing to the charity of the passers-by. By means of a short string he held a dog, around the neck of which a card was fastened with the words, "I Am Blind." A very kind old gentleman, who had been in the habit of dropping a penny into the beggar's hat, passed rapidly one morning without doing so. Instantly the beggar rushed after him and asked for the penny to be given as usual. The gentleman, turning in surprise, said: "Why, I thought you were blind?" "Oh, no, sir," was the cool reply. "It is the dog that is blind, as the card says."

CIVILIANS ARE PROBING THE UNITED STATES NAVY.

Three Engineers Will Suggest More Efficient Administration.

The United States navy is in the hands of three Philadelphia civilians after April 1 for an indefinite period. These three men are to go through the navy department in every detail and place its administration on a more efficient and economic basis.

Charles Day of Dodge & Day, Harrington Emerson of the Emerson Engineering company and H. L. Gantt, three of the leading efficiency engineers of the United States, are the men.

The investigation of the manner in which the navy is being conducted, of the work done in navy yards and the general system of operation is the outcome of the declaration of Attorney Brandeis, one of the chief counsel representing the shippers during the recent railroad rate hearings. He declared then that there is no need of an increase in rates, saying that any railroad could make its system pay with more efficient and economical management.

This statement aroused the government, and immediately steps were taken to investigate the navy and, if possible, place it on a more efficient working basis. The government selected the Philadelphians for the work because of the character of their experience. They will go to sea with the big battleships and see how they are manipulated. They will learn how the men fire the engines and try to note waste and inefficiency. Later they will return to the navy yards and begin their work of investigating there.

Each of the three men will have so many yards to investigate and report upon, and in every detail they will work separately.

"Money Talks"

but it won't say much for you unless it's YOUR money.

You'll be surprised to see how a few dollars in a good bank like this will coax other dollars in—how soon you'll have a nice little sum laid away without missing it—how eloquently it will talk to you when a chance comes to put it at work digging up dividends on a good investment.

It's SAFE here, too. Yes, and as "ready" as cash in your pocket, without offering the same temptation to spend it. Come in and talk it over. Come in today.

The Importance Of Little Things.

It is a failing of the American people as a whole to be unappreciative of the importance of the little things; yet every fortune is made up of many dollar-units.

An account started here and kept alive by frequent and regular deposits soon assumes surprisingly great proportions.

We shall be pleased to have you on our books as a depositor. We pay interest on TIME DEPOSITS.

A Welcome Change

Smoke curling up from the farmhouse chimney as the men are coming in from the fields, gives a pretty suggestion of a good supper and a comfortable home. But it also means a hot, tired woman, working hard over a blazing fire.

Your wife can escape this with a New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

A New Perfection keeps a kitchen many degrees cooler than any other range, yet it does all a coal or wood range can do. It saves time, labor and fuel. No wood to cut; no coal to carry; no ashes; no soot. With the New Perfection oven it is the best cooking device you can find anywhere.

New Perfection
Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Hand-painted finish throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.

Dealers everywhere; or write for descriptive circular to the nearest agency of the Standard Oil Company (Incorporated)

Mid-Summer

Clearance Sale of Fine Clothes

NOW comes the time when we begin to clear the decks for the fall campaign of clothes-selling; we like to have all the summer goods out of the way; as complete a clean-up as possible; and we try to do it by making special prices on what we have left

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Fine Goods

The clothes are the same that we've been selling right along at regular prices; they're just as good now as they were then; such clothes don't deteriorate by time; even wearing them doesn't affect them as much as most clothes. The only difference you'll find is in the prices; and we've made them low as an inducement to the men who haven't yet bought new clothes, or who are willing to buy now for next season, or for the remainder of this.

We'll sell suits now that were $18, $20, $25 at $14, $16.50, $17.50

This Sale Begins on Saturday, July 8th and Continues Until Saturday, July 15th

Everything exactly as advertised and there will be no departure, even in the least from these facts and figures
